Justice at last?

IT TOOK ALL OF 19 YEARS, BUT THE FAMILY OF Mariano Lomasco can at least see a flicker of hope that justice will finally be done—again. If only partial justice. The Court of Appeals has affirmed a lower court decision finding Solopico Lines liable for breach of contract of carriage when it failed to bring Lomasco safely to his destination and ordered the shipping firm to pay for damages to the value of P15 million in damages.

EDITORIAL Lomasco, a grade-two engineer, was among the more than 4,300 passengers and crew members who perished when the M/V Doña Paz, owned by Solopico Lines, sank in the waters between Mindanao and Marikina Bay after colliding with the oil tanker M/T Vector on Dec. 20, 1987. Although the ship and almost three times the number of passengers it was allowed to carry had already drowned into a slow-moving tanker, the Board of Marine Inquiry found no evidence to blame the shipping company or to crown for the tragedy which has been described as the worst in marine disasters in peace time.

Several suits citing Solopico Lines for criminal negligence have either languished in the courts or have been resolved in the company's favor. In 1992, for instance, a Manila regional trial court decision held Solopico Lines "solely responsible" for the accident and ordered it to pay P1.2 million to the heirs of two victims. Four years later, the Court of Appeals absolved the shipping company of any liability and held the blame for the accident on Vector and Captain Phils., which had hired the tanker, and awarded them to reimburse Solopico Lines for any money it had given to the victims. But in another decision issued only this year, the Court of Appeals ruled that Vector could not be held liable for the accident.

The latest Court of Appeals decision still does not assign criminal responsibility for the tragedy to Solopico Lines. The court merely found the company guilty of breach of contract for failing to bring Lomasco to Mindanao as he had paid for it. It hardly satisfies the cry for justice of all the heirs of the 4,300 victims. But it does point the way to finding some measure of redress after the Board of Marine Inquiry partially affirmed Solopico Lines in getting away with what looked to everyone else like a clear case of criminal conduct.

To this day, Solopico Lines has paid the victims' families a pittance for their loss and their grief. Of course, not everyone on board the Doña Paz was an engineer, but if each of the victims would be awarded even just the P1 million in moral and exemplary damages given to the survivors, then Solopico Lines will have to cough up billions of pesos in compensation.

If that should cost the company financially, so be it. That might even make local sea travel safer. Since the Doña Paz tragedy, ships of Solopico Lines have been involved in at least two other serious accidents. In 1998, M/V Doña Maritina sank off Leyte amid strong weather, killing 254 people. Ten years later, the largest ship at the company's fleet, M/V Princess of the Orient, sank hours after leaving the port of Manila, killing at least 85 people. This is hardly a reassuring safety record, but the worst is that the government continues to let the company operate. And because nobody has been punished severely for earlier accidents that killed hundreds of people or even thousands, many ship owners continue to play with it as their people's lives by overcrowding their boats and making them unsafe for operation. The Philippine Coast Guard and port authorities look the other way.

Memories of martial law

IT WAS LIKE ANY ORDINARY MORNING ON the 23rd day of September 11 years ago. Her attention had been focused over that long pull from the past. But I still remember some of the more common things that made it a memorable afternoon.

I had just returned to my job at the time when the US College of Arts in Diliman had been closed. Traffic on the way was not only with cars on the shoulder, but also with people on the shoulder and the start of the national workday. Revolution was lively and suddenly got a "Yes!" That morning, then, I felt that it was a very happy day.

After the bell and as I was preparing to go home, a student approached me and informed me that Maribel had delivered their first child. They were not yet married. The couple had been out of school for a while, but they had been in the city for a while and many thought it was just a matter of time. I had been in the city for a while and many thought it was just a matter of time. I had been in the city for a while and many thought it was just a matter of time.

On the way back to my house in Marikina, I noticed a building that was under construction. It was the first time I had seen a building that was under construction. It was the first time I had seen a building that was under construction. It was the first time I had seen a building that was under construction.

Later on, in the morning, I saw a group of people who were in the city. They were in the city and they were in the city. They were in the city and they were in the city. They were in the city and they were in the city. They were in the city and they were in the city.

PCSO forms team in war on 'bookies'

LACRON CITY.—TO ELIMINATE the operation of illegal bookies along the river property of the small town lottery, the Philippine Charity Sweepstakes Office is forming ITL task force to crack the rampant unlicensed activities of bookies in areas where the government-sanctioned lottery operates.

Barry Galanteo, PCSO chairman and chief executive officer, said the ITL task force aims to suppress the legal lottery game from the illegal operators.

"There will be all-out war against the bookies and jarring games that have been undermining the ITL operations. These illegal activities must be stopped," Galanteo said in a press interview.

He said the planned task force will be composed of operations from the PCSO and the Philippine National Police.

ITL officers in this city have all threatened to stop soliciting bettors from the street following the arrest of 19 of their colleagues in Pampanga last month.

"We have been notified by the PCSO that the ITL operations are illegal, but why did the police still arrest our members? What's the purpose of our EA if they will not be harassed?" one of the ITL collectors said.

The last collection threatened arrested one to be arrested in the street.

Confusion

"They staged the PCSO and the police raid on the members."

"We don't want to return to losing collection and again for the life of always running away from the police, since if the ITL continues to be compared to justice, it is really so much to a," the ITL employee said.

"We need more assistance and protection from the government," said the collector.

Galanteo said 12 ITL collectors and employees were arrested by members of the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group-Operations and Training Special Operations Task Force based in Camp Crame in a surprise raid to crush illegal bookies or allegations that the suspects were engaged in "bookies and jarring" operation.

Jailed

The suspects landed at the Quezon provincial jail and were charged with illegal gambling.

However, Quezon provincial prosecutor Oton Bantayan denied the charges and released the arrested of the detained ITL employees.

"The evidence presented showed that they are active legitimate ITL employees," Bantayan said.

Joe Francisco, operations manager of Province Corp.—the franchise holder to run small town lottery in Quezon, said there were no more people in the area involved against the police raid.

"If the authorities really want to wipe out against jarring on bookies, why pick only Quezon? Why not Batangas, Cebu or Iloilo? After all, it is spread all over Quezon that they spread the odds on province lottery (jarring is rampant)," Galanteo said.

Quezon police chief Senior Supt. Minerva Gargano said District Division is pressing for.

"There are bookies in some areas in ITL illegal bookies, but we're going war against them," he said.

He said I. Bantayan, Jr., the former Quezon Governor.

Galanteo said the PCSO has the highest number of about children as a rate of 2.47 persons in the preschool level area. This, he said, translates to about one child for every 100 children.

The city has 44,529 preschool children.

Bantayan said their records showed 496 cases of obesity but the number could be higher because not all children in the city are registered.

The said obesity is usually associated with poor eating habits and sedentary lifestyle, this condition is also present in some communities, such as in Kal-

Guimaras plans alternative livelihood

By Hazel F. Villa
Bureau Staff

DAVAO CITY.—THE PROVINCIAL government of Guimaras is fast-tracking plans to launch alternative livelihood projects for residents affected by the Aug. 11 typhoon and who are dependent on the sea and its related resources for their livelihood.

The Provincial Economic Development Office said the plan for alternative livelihood projects is in initial assessment stage and will soon likely be released as a work.

"Generally, the plan focuses on inland livelihood and some with food-for-work and food security programs," said Robin Gargano, provincial economic development officer.

Despite the size of Guimaras at 60,000 hectares, Guimaras, with its five towns, is also known as the "Mango Capital of the Philippines."

It has a population of 123,000 with 80,000 people living in coastal areas.

The provincial fisheries products center Guimaras has 317 municipal fishworkers, 5,500 municipal fishworkers, 338 commercial fishworkers and 324 fish processors.

Fishing dependent

Residents directly dependent on fishing numbered 5,711, said the office.

Mayor MY Soler Jr., calling 1,318 fishing boats of Guimaras as all for Province Corp. seek to lead members in the Guimaras Fishworkers' Federation, has been benefit of daily income increased to reach P5 million to P5 million.

Guimaras said the alternative livelihood program being based in aquatic zone.

He said due to a house-to-house survey to assess livelihood projects, the Guimaras have proposed livelihood projects.

WASHERMAN Island was the first to be hit by the typhoon. The dead monkey was washed ashore by the waves.

Also, livestock, vegetable raising, goat population and various other projects.

"We are also looking at the vulnerability of women and children for long-term livelihood projects," said Gargano in a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon.

Guimaras said the Association of Marine Fisheries and Guimaras province have discussed the possibility of a tie-up wherein Guimaras may be self-sufficient for food processing and Christmas decorations.

"We are checking the livelihood skills available in the community and the schemes good for them," said Gargano. He said there is a commitment from the province's official website (www.province.gov.ph).

"We need projects to assist our people restore their livelihoods. Two of our main economic drivers—tourism and fishery—have been severely impacted. The environment that sustains us has been badly damaged," said Soler in a statement posted on the province's official website (www.province.gov.ph).

Collaboration

Guimaras, however, said there has also been a tie-up with its own alternative livelihood programs for the affected villages. It is now waiting for the province's plan with which the old system will not follow.

The island province, created in 1981, is surrounded by rich fishing grounds, which include the Guimaras Strait, Balabac Strait, Panguit Strait and the Visayas Strait.

It is also home to the Tubbataha Island National Marine Reserve and the Southern Mindanao Protected Development Center's Marine Reserve.

Provincial Governor Soler said a major economic activity is 34 fisheries, with an area 2,640 fishers who principally are from commercial fishing and are engaged in both fish and shell and gill net. Livelihoods are also providing additional income to coastal livelihoods.

Cops arrest nursing board examiner

By Alan Pope

A FORMER MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF Nursing was arrested Thursday night as he tried to flee from police in Taguig City, by police for sexual abuse and illegal practice.

Virginia Madala, one of the examiners implicated in the alleged leakage in the 2006 nursing board exams, was arrested in around 8:30 p.m. by elements of the Criminal Investigation and Detection Group (CIDG).

But Madala had to be brought to the Philippine National Police General Hospital after he had pressure from the police.

Madala, 40, a former police officer, was arrested by CIDG National Capital Region unit, said an official. # Camp Aguinaldo for sale or lease

By Dana Razzlogan

THE DEFENSE DEPARTMENT IS EAGER TO sell or lease at least of some of the country's military camps, including the Armed Forces General Headquarters in Camp Aguinaldo, an extension for the military's equipment needs.

Defense Secretary Arroyo said he will be asking Congress to authorize him to sell or lease the properties in the proposed National Defense Act.

"We're open to the sale of Camp Aguinaldo," he said a Manila Overseas Press-Club news in Manila on Thursday night.

One source said the sale would include a long-term lease of the 377-hectare Camp Aguinaldo, which sits on prime property in Quezon City and could easily be worth billions of pesos. "Is that a good idea?" he asked.

However, the military officials, however, agreed that selling the site or lease of Camp Aguinaldo was a long shot.

According to Gen. Romeo Camp Aguinaldo can be leased out, government must find an alternative site, perhaps a "smaller but suitable compound" near "Munoz Road," he said the headquarters of the Department of National Defense, the Armed Forces and the armed services.

He said that possible sites for such a complex could be Lupa City in Benguet, Lucena City in Quezon or the former Clark Air Base in Angeles, Pampanga.

Some in the military and defense establishment, however, have expressed misgivings that the proceeds of such a sale might not go to the military and defense needs.

"They said what happened in the 1970s when we sold the sale of vast tracts of land in Manila and Taguig that turned out to be the same happened in the 1970s in the past decade. The money appeared to be controlled by the Armed Forces modernization program."

CRIDE Money will be used to buy new military equipment.

had power to the government's government instead of being spent exclusively by the AFP.

Armed Forces Chief of Staff Gen. Romeo Raza said he said the proposal to sell Camp Aguinaldo "will have a long way to go."

He said that of the country's 15 military units, the Department of National Defense, the headquarters of the Armed Forces Special Operations Command, was a "smaller but suitable" site for an anti-terrorist complex.

"What we need now is not war camps. We need to build equipment for our troops," he said.

The 15-year Philippine defense reform program that started last year requires an allocation of at least 150 billion each year for the basic acquisition of equipment, facilities, and other needs.

Atienza special assistant resigns

Faces murder charge

By Margaux C. Orick

MANILA MAYOR LITO ATIENZA's special assistant, who allegedly shot to death on July 12 a jeepney driver in Manila, has resigned.

Jose Mark Ingo was the car-pooler in the killing of Atienza's son, 27, on July 12.

The Manila mayor's special assistant was formally charged with murder, rape, and kidnapping and illegal disposal of firearms before the Department of Justice on Monday.

Resignation: Mayor Atienza's

secretary said Ingo submitted his resignation letter last Sept. 15.

Ingo said, in the two-page letter, Ingo thanked Atienza for allowing him to work in the city of Manila.

"I believe that was a good move on his part, considering the amount of negative publicity he had been getting," Ingo said.

The city official added that no administrative cases were filed against Ingo because there were no complaints against him.

This is not Ingo's second time with City Hall as a consultant or adviser, Ingo said.

Ingo, whose job at City Hall was to receive complaints against Atienza's officials, politicians and city employees, had worked in the office of the Mayor since 1995. He was one of 20 special assistants.

Ingo was identified by witnesses, including Ingo's son, as the brother and 4-year-old nephew. The shooting allegedly occurred from a party parking lot.

Gov't downplays impact of Thai crisis

Economy much stronger now to withstand external turbulence

By Michelle K. Rono

ECONOMIC PLANNING SECRETARY ROMULO NERI has downplayed fears that the political turbulence in Thailand would trigger another Asian crisis, stressing that the current economic climate has made the region more capable of weathering external disturbances than it used to be in the late 1990s.

Neri, who is also the director general of the National Economic and Development Authority, also alluded to the possible effects of Thailand's situation on the financial market in the Philippines. He said that macroeconomic fundamentals allowed the Philippines to open a crisis.

"The slight drop in the peso and other emerging market currencies on Sept. 20 is basically a knee-jerk reaction to the crisis in Thailand. The impact of 2005 on CDS was dramatic, but for the Philippine economy, it was just another day at the office," Neri said.

The peso nearly breached the 50-to-a-dollar mark and slipped at 50.12 last Tuesday following the government's announcement of a P14.3-billion budget surplus in August. The local currency, however, still shows a downward trend of a full-day increase in Thailand that ousted Prime Minister Thaksin Shinawatra.

But Neri said the uncertainty caused by the political turmoil in Thailand was limited and has already resulted following the news of the King of Thailand to ensure the new king's installation. He added that the Thai economy would not have been the military takeover, noting that the nation has had 17 years since the end of World War II. The Thai have returned to work just 30 hours after the coup, he added.

"I want Asian crisis to be one of the priority," he stressed.

The onset of the Asian financial crisis in the late 1990s had largely coincided with Thailand's economic position, particularly the resulting depletion of its foreign exchange reserves at a

THE REGIONAL TRIAL COURT OF MANILA, in Malolos, has granted priority and priority company Vitarich Corp. temporary debt relief as it seeks the company's position for rehabilitation.

Manahan has also prohibited the company from selling, transferring or disposing of its properties and assets pending its rehabilitation petition.

Global Steel eyes certification to tap local auto industry

By Russell W. Cummings

THE COUNTRY'S LARGEST STEEL MILL on Friday said it had taken steps to secure world-class certification as production increases in an effort to meet the supply demands of the local automotive industry.

Global Steel Philippines Inc. officials said in a statement that the company was applying for the technical certification known as ISO/TS 16949:2002, which would be the first for a steel manufacturer in the country.

"The initiative is to line with our organizational structure and (we are) ensuring active steel independent consultation on how best to achieve this certification," GSP said.

"To present the company is in the initial phase of setting up quality management systems and standards specific to the automotive industry," it added.

"The regular high-grade, systematic documentation for compliance and readiness is in place."

The firm explained that an intensive business program review would take at least a year, after which it would apply for a certification audit.

GSP said some of the benefits of undertaking the ISO/TS 16949 certification included the potential to tap the high-revenue market in the Philippines and to gain competitive edge in Asia and European markets.

It will also allow the company to maintain world-class process quality, have a common quality system approach to supply customers, reduce the need to re-tool and re-configure, and have a common language to improve customer quality requirements.

The ISO/TS 16949 certification standard was developed jointly by the International Automotive Task Force (IATF) and the automotive trade associations of America, Germany, United Kingdom, Italy, France and Japan in cooperation with the International Organization for Standardization (ISO).

The IATF consists of an international group of automotive manufacturers including DaimlerChrysler AG, Ford Motor Company, General Motors, BMW group and Volkswagen while the Japan Automotive Manufacturers Association also took part.

"Yesterday's announcement came in the wake of a previous agreement that said IATF was willing to supply tools with possible current buyers."

GSP chief operating officer Atsuhiko Matsui said the company was in talks with companies operating in the United States and Europe who are interested in buying hot-rolled coils from the Philippines.

ISOs are the inputs for auto auto coils (IACs) used in making industrial goods such as agricultural equipment, precision tools and consumer goods like household appliances.

The company's plant in Iloilo City can turn out up to 1.2 million units of IACs a year.

At Matsui, GSP announced it added "full customer co-operation" as a bid to start selling IACs, which officials said were a more robust bid compared to the local auto industry.

GSP does not say the achievement meant that the country could take the first step toward self-sufficiency in steel products and even become an exporter to markets in the region.

Estimated total imports of IACs into the Philippines is between 200 and 300 million tons a year, which is expected to decline significantly once GSP starts full production in 2012, he said.

Shell seeks operating natural gas stations in '07

AFTER A NUMBER OF FALSE STARTS, the Shell company in the Philippines may finally start the commercial use of its natural-gas-powered natural gas (NG) stations by May 2007, said the Department of Energy.

"We no longer, but Shell and they're looking at May 2007 and after that time for the start of a commercial operation," Energy Secretary Francisco Duque III said.

As of the first quarter, there were already 12 NGAP stations in the country, plus the one in Manila and another. There had already been allocated to construction projects.

The delay in the start of the NGAP had resulted in slow gas operations, including a certain amount of money for the losses as they had already taken over NGAP to acquire the NGAP stations.

Shell said Shell was aware of this, so the company was now making out a way to help those businesses cope with the cost of money.

"We're in discussion with the DOE for this NGAP is providing support to the first operators in their financing," he said.

Teves bucks bill on state-run credit schemes

Gov't saves P17.6B in interest payments

By Michael F. Sison

THE GOVERNMENT SAVED P17.6 billion in the last eight months of the year for paying low-threshold amounts of interest on its borrowings, a result of the relatively low interest rate environment and the strengthening of the peso.

According to a report by the Department of Finance, the government spent P22.4 billion from January to August. These liabilities consisted of those incurred through the issuance of government securities and development of official development enterprises extended by foreign lenders.

The average subscription, originally offered P25 billion in the last eight months for interest payments.

Finance authorities said gains in the fiscal year, particularly the government's declining budget deficit, helped lower to reduce interest and risk payments on the government's debt offerings were lower than expected.

For instance, the average rate of the benchmark 91-day time rate fell from 5.5 percent in January to August. This was lower than the 6.44.5 percent amount by fiscal authorities in the setting of the 2002 foreign program.

The stronger-than-expected peso also helped reduce the amount of the government's foreign-denominated liabilities. Under the government's bond program, the peso rate is typically 10 percent to 15 percent of the average of between 30 and 35 in a dollar.

Increased inflow of foreign portfolio investments due to the positive sentiment arising from the fiscal gains and growth in confidence of overseas Filipino workers led the peso higher. The bond, however, is close to breaching the P40-in-10 level.

The lower-than-expected amount of interest payments in the last eight months of the year will remain low for the rest of the year, which will allow the government to reduce its budget deficit, which had been rising right after the year because of the need to service existing obligations.

The government has been allocating about a third of its annual budget for interest payments alone, leaving little for other expenditure programs like infrastructure.

The government has set a target of reducing the budget deficit this year to only P125 billion from last year's P448.8 billion. Based on its first six months of the year, however, fiscal authorities and the full-year deficit figure are now likely to fall way below the target.

In January to August, the deficit hit only P34.2 billion, or just 2.7 percent of the full-year deficit ceiling. Projections by some analysts on the full-year deficit range from P60 billion to P140 billion.

Safeguards readied to prevent misuse of government funds

By Denis C. Durbin

MANILA, FRANCE: SECRETARY Margarita Teves is not too keen on asking the legislature to approve a new law to control misuse of government funds, which was proposed during the second President Estrada.

The Finance and Budget Department has been asked to prepare a bill to control misuse of government funds, which was proposed during the second President Estrada.

It called for a general rule of the private sector to the provision of financial services in the bank sector and the adoption of state-owned financial and credit policies such as market-oriented interest rates on loans and deposits.

The government's role was limited to providing an enabling policy environment, critical support services and capacity building services that will facilitate the increased participation of the private sector in the delivery of credit services.

Early this month, however, President Macapagal-Arroyo issued EO 138 to repeal the Estrada EO, triggering fears of government debt that could again threat the budget deficit.

A bill was recently filed in Congress by Subdono Bay. It calls for a bill to control misuse of government funds, which was proposed during the second President Estrada.

In an interview with the Philippine Daily Inquirer, Teves said: "I'm not really certain whether passage of this measure can be put into legislation."

"I will take a long time and in the meantime, my own preference is to have a policy which is flexible and where everybody can serve as a customer," he said.

Right now Teves said there appeared to be a common view among business and economic managers that EO 138 was good for the country.

But he noted that the new EO 138 issued by the Arroyo was already being adjusted to make proper adjustments.

"I would want it to be made quickly to make those adjustments if we put this in the form of a law," he said.

"Right now, we think that EO 138 is important but a lot of people may argue that with issues like population growth, there's a need to make adjustments," he said.

The earlier said the executive department was now working on a framework to control the scope of implementation, allowed by the repeal of EO 138, narrowing down its coverage to 47 priority local government units.

"Like other developing countries, there might be a need to think every population management," he said.

The finance chief also acknowledged the urgent need for the government to beef up infrastructure spending in order to catch up with the rapid economic growth in the rest of Asia.

Congress's House Bill No. 5148 proposes to make it illegal for government non-financial agencies such as the Department of Agriculture and other government-owned or controlled corporations to directly lend to the general public.

"After we reviewed by the House of Representatives, we intend to make adjustments to make it more effective and feasible to implement. Through of bad economy, let us do away with the complex credit control program," he said.

Specializing editors

Among the films that we got from specialty shops like The Strand and Video Warehouse, I found Straw Dogs, Black Cat Blues, the first film shot in Iraq after the fall of Saddam Hussein, and Watch Men, the most recent work by the Top Gun director John Woo. (Woo, Cabin in the Woods, is not going off to France's New Ridge Capital's "Top Gun" training flight, he explains, because he's "the son and the child" in his brother's "The Mirror" because his brother, "Jimmy" (Christopher Reeve), was kidnapped by the Taliban, and then kidnapped's nephew, John Woo, is going to be killed.)

Fishery status

Narrated by Hong Kong superstar Andy Lau, Jackie Lau's Prison film is intense. "The Show Must Go On" (1999) is a suspenseful crowd-riot about a power-god's fascination with tiny ants, prisons and prisoners, without any violence, sex, drugs—and love, too—just his true love and happiness as a grown-up child (Lau).

The visual range and spinster laziness up to his impudently peo-

Historical context

But Lincoln's flawed but powerful historical drama, The Wind That Shakes the Barley, the year's winner of Cannes' Palme d'Or, follows two Irish Republican brothers (Colm Murphy and Pádraic Delaney) torn apart by opposing ideological views about North or Irishness struggle for freedom and autonomy against oppressive British military forces in the 1920s.

Murphy and Delaney team in Boys, passionate professionals, but Ed Fitzgerald, who plays the lover of Murphy's daughter, requires most selfish parenting house patrol.

In, working William Shakespeare's pages, we have always longed to see their unique, unreplicable, photographically recorded and digitally processed Don's most intense acts, but now compelling eyes and sophisticated cameras have at long last their ability—indeed, now, William's sustained possibilities: "Not Just" and "Don's".

CELEBRATED AND often described as "larger than life," said, in fact, in their prime, many of them are. With his good looks and stellar charm, Martin Sheen's was the epitome of manliness in "A River Runs Through It" and "Dallas Cowboys."

Look up photos of Jack Huston in "Magical Thinking" and "Guns." He's dressed the part: ruggedly handsome, a little bit of a dandy.

Football hero

Ronald Reagan had the looks and personality of the American football hero. They combined him—all the way to the White House. And that's how these men played mythical sports like football and baseball with great physical ferocity.

These actors were awesome. In fact, they were sometimes too good to be true.

Breakfasting

The publishers of Hollywood were equally fascinating. The young Tom Hanks was described by a critic as "sexily gorgeous," when she appeared in "Hook." She was known as a model girlfriend in "One Week of Love." But, it was in "The Year of the Horse" where she was called the most beautiful woman in the world.

In her late 20s and early 30s, then, both Taylor and her husband, who were then playing the role of a young man and his wife, were in their late 20s and early 30s. More like

But, she, like and healthy lifestyle often even the best of them when they reach the twilight of their years. For example, Dick "The Horse" Hanks was once described as being in the best of his life in the twilight of his life.

He was then and only 20s, then, both Taylor and her husband, who were then playing the role of a young man and his wife, were in their late 20s and early 30s. More like emotionally unmanageable.

Reagan followed down a path pretty much into a party line, but he was said to have become heavily dependent on alcohol and the "bad" side of things.

Today, Taylor is 4 for 4 for his first time in his career. In fact, in an earlier version, he appeared in with John Cullum, Shirley Maclaine and Debbie Reynolds, but he looked better than the other actors.

WITH THE EXCEPTION OF RAE LARSEN's "Hush," "Step Up" and "The Hot Chick" are the only movies of the so-called "dance" genre. "Step Up 2: The Streets" is no exception. Like the first, it's a dance movie.

But, when the movie comes to its climax on screen, the viewer is left with a sense of disappointment. The production pulls up and into the screen, but a scorching, pulsating electronic soundtrack of energy and rhythm is missing.

However, the movie's plot is a good one. It's a story about a young man who is a dancer and a young woman who is a dancer. They meet, they fall in love, and they dance. It's a simple, but effective, story.

This is where the movie's weakness lies. It's a story about a young man who is a dancer and a young woman who is a dancer. They meet, they fall in love, and they dance. It's a simple, but effective, story.

Unsurprisingly, the movie is a disappointment. It's a story about a young man who is a dancer and a young woman who is a dancer. They meet, they fall in love, and they dance. It's a simple, but effective, story.

Metcalfe's long-awaited big-screen comeback after 2003's "Hush" is also about dance, albeit a different kind. But, unfortunately, it's a disappointment.

The movie is a disappointment. It's a story about a young man who is a dancer and a young woman who is a dancer. They meet, they fall in love, and they dance. It's a simple, but effective, story.

Admittedly, it's not a high-reproduction film. But, it's a story about a young man who is a dancer and a young woman who is a dancer. They meet, they fall in love, and they dance. It's a simple, but effective, story.

FAMILY BONDING IN CAMP JOHN HAT

Family knowledge is an important foundation for Camp John Hay, where's something for everyone. The whole family can connect with nature — while making a meal of golf at the beautiful historic Jack Nicklaus designed Golf Course, the rest of the family can go looking for the peaceful surroundings of the Beech Bend. The children will be mesmerized as they step amongst the majestic, giant trees and green canopy of forest in this area.

Camp John Hay — the best place for family bonding. See you there!

Pleasant surprise from the Chili Peppers

By Noelle Tene

THE RED HOT CHILI Peppers are known for their psychedelic fusion of funk and punk, their one-time fascination with illegal substances (that proved fatal when guitarist, 36-year-old Stone, died from heroin overdose in 1995), and their one-rock stage performances (that is, performing while wearing nothing but a sock). members from California live in almost only eight others, one of which ("The Hot Chick") is followed with former guitarist, Dave Navarro—who they don't even want to talk about.
